*But all people are not boors.— You can distinguish the true lady or gentleman here or elsewhere. They are never impertinent, drunk, nor sprawling dead asleep over the seats. They seem to take it for granted that all is being done for their speed and comfort that is possible and are satisfied. Coarse men, women, and old people make us the most trouble. They seldom know exactly what they want and so are never at ease. The latter class we can tolerate for hu-manity's sake—but the men! Why, I feel like pitching them from the train, sometimes. They imagine their little slip of pasteboard entitles them to all the room they can occupy and a voice in the train management besides.
